Before we throw one knife, we need to learn exactly what our goal is, how we achieve it, and what we need to achieve it. Besides a knife, we're going to need a target. Choosing a good destination is critical for beginners and experts alike. For beginners, it is imperative that you have a soft and large target. This ensures that you don't focus on exactly or electricity, and focus on working on the right rotations. A large decaying tree trunk is ideal if you are in the northern forest of Wisconsin since they are easy to find, and meet our specifications as stated before. Safety is essential for throwing knives. When throwing, you need to wear hard shoes, and be sure your throwing space is far from people and pets. Before you throw, let people nearby know it's dangerous and proceed with caution. Now that we have everything we need to throw knives, let's focus on what our targets will be! The goals of throwing a knife vary depending on your skill level. In this instruction, we will go for different rounds. Our first goal would be to throw a knife with half a round. So we focus on full rotations, and eventually I'm going to make some advanced pitches. All these throws present a new challenge which will build up your skills and will give you the satisfaction of conquering your goals. Now that we know what we're going to do, pick up your knives and let's get down and get dirty with our throwing position! Position!
